The result was a whirlwind leap year courtship, which began when William Hoffman, 21, a railway re-pair shop plumber, advertised for a wife and ended when he married Miss Ida E. Hinton, 22, after Miss May Gertrude Dean, 16, and beautiful, gave him the cold shoulder because he not talk love. Breaks All Records

The Hoffman-Dean-Hinton advenure in matrimony breaks Ohio rec-ords, it is said, for rapid proposals and speedy ceremonies

Hoffman wrote to a newspaper. He received ten letters from Canton lassies. He called on Miss Dean, and she says he metaphorically "jingled the money he would get." Dazzled, she says, at the promise of riches, she accepted Hoffman and the next day he called with the Rev. Ira D. Warner and a license

But Miss Dean, with her wedding gown across her shoulders, orange blossoms in her hair and the usual tears in her eyes, called down the stairs and told him to go the way he came.

Was Shy on Love.

"I don't love him. I never would love him, and he doesnt' love me," she explained to her mother. Miss Hinton telephoned Hoffman at his hotel at 6 o'clock the following morning.

"If you're not married yet, I'll wait in the lobby," she said. Hoffman and his bride-to-be sat in the lobby until the county auditor's office opened two hours later. The Rev. Warner wouldn't marry them for another hour. The 9 o'clock courthouse chimes the Hoffman wedding bells.

"I wouldn't have been happy with money and no love," says Miss Dean. "I wanted a home and sensible hus-and and I got them," says Mrs. Hoff-

"Marriage is what you make it." Hoffman thinks. "We'll love each other. Miss Dean wouldn't do because she didn't take things seriously. Any-way-we've got the money."
